FITS #455 BROILER / ROTISSERIE

The first cave man to push a chunk of dinosaur onto a green twig and hold it over an open fire — invented skewer cookery. Food for skewer cooking may be almost anything eatable, by itself or combined with other foods. It can be plain or fancy, simple or exotic — your imagination is your only limit.

is the Near Eastern version of skewer cookery. Traditionally, it is made with lamb or mutton and accompanied by pilaff, kasha or boiled rice.

(under various spellings) is the Russian version of skewer cooking. Traditionally it is made by alternating cubes of mutton and mutton fat on the skewer or sword.

is the name given to the Far Eastern version of skewer cooking. Highly spiced pork is the meat usually used, but any combination of meats, or meats, vegetables and fruits may be used.

are South African in origin, and often consisted of meat such as veal, mutton or pork either marinated or highly spiced. More recently a spiced meat and fruit combination has been popular.

Set up the rotisserie unit as you would for broiling.
Do not use the wire rack.

Place Shish-Kebab frame on the stainless steel body of the broiler.

Make sure the frame is placed so that the skewer
handles are on the same side as the broiler outlet
plug. (See figure A)

Insert the adjustable rotisserie arm support into the spring latch support on side opposite broiler outlet plug. It is not necessary to use the second rotisserie support.

Push the rotisserie arm support all the way down to the last notch, or adjustment #1. It will also work on #2.

Adjust moveable motor prong on Shish-Kebab frame to fit into the support bracket of the rotisserie motor arm support.

Place motor on rotisserie arm support, and at the same time it will fit into the movable center prong
of Shish-Kebab.

Fill skewers and insert tips, then handles.

Shish Kebab unit will work well with any number of skewers, one to five.

The five stainless steel skewers are easy to clean. They can be washed as any dish in your sink or dish washer. If stubborn stains or spots exist pre-soaking before washing eliminates need of hard rubbing or scouring. The frame should be wiped clean with a damp cloth. Do not use steel wool or a heavy abrasive.

lean lamb meat
Juice and grated rind 1 lemon
¼ cup salad oil, or olive oil

For rare, juicy meat push the cubes together with sides touching; for crisp, browned meat, leave a space between cubes. Makes 6 servings.
